

The labor movement has united against SEIU.

Here's what top union leaders have to say:

“Deplorable”

—Terrence O’Sullivan, President of the Laborers Union, to the 2009 Unite Here convention

“Bullsh--t”

—Gerald McEntee, President of AFSCME, the public service workers’ union, to the 2009 Unite Here convention

“the boss’s lackey union”

—John Wilhelm, President of Unite Here, to the 2009 Unite Here convention

“a management surveillance team.

They will do anything... to get dues.”

—Rose Ann DeMoro, Executive Director of California Nurses Association, to the Daily Labor Report

“less democratic than the Teamsters”

—Ken Paff, Teamsters for a Democratic Union, to the Los Angeles Times

“Hypocrites”

—Malcolm Harris, President of SEIU’s staff union and an SEIU organizer, to the Associated Press

“a race to the bottom...

top-down unionism that excludes decent contracts and the rightful role of union members...

they stand for the suicide of the labor movement.”

—John Wilhelm, President of Unite Here, to the Las Vegas Sun

SEIU President Stern is

“the Darth Vader of the labor movement”

—Vincent Giblin, President of the Operating Engineers union, to the 2009 Unite Here convention

“SEIU is trying to be the company union in our industries, so we are battling both SEIU and employers.”

—Mike Casey, President of Unite Here Local 2, to the 2009 Unite Here convention

“the most morally reprehensible conduct that I have ever seen from people who honor themselves with the name ‘union leader’”

—Dana Simon, SEIU 1199 Massachusetts Hospital Organizing Campaign Director, in his resignation letter

“the worst instance of a union undermining another union”

—Fred Ross, Jr., labor and community organizer who resigned from SEIU after ten years, in a Beyond Chron commentary

In SEIU, our union is isolated and alone. We deserve a democratic union where workers are united, not divided.

NUHW is the solution.

Lower dues. Higher standards. Elected leaders we know and trust.
